MAJOR BOUDREN'S REPLY TO UNKNOWN AUTHOR

The action of the Common Council of Bridgeport in unanimously opposing Compulsory Vaccination prompted some one, who did not dare to sign his name, to send to the members the following:

Prof. Councilman says "Small-pox can, but never will be wholly eradicated. The chief obstacle which stands in the way of eradication is the inability to recognize facts and to make proper deductions from them, which seem to be associated with certain orders of mind. The facts with regard to the production of small-pox immunity by vaccination are established. The order of mind which leads to their denial will probably never disappear from the human race."

"Professor Councilman is NOT a a coach-lamp manufacturer.

"Professor Councilman is NOT a sewing machine mechanic."

This was on a postal card and was intended for argument in favor of vaccination—so put to it are its defenders for anything worth saying.

If the writer of the card had desired, he might have quoted medical and scientific authorities quite as eminent as Professor Councilman, and he could have added:

Professor Alfred Wallace is NOT a

Coach Lamp Maker;

Herbert Spencer was NOT a

Sewing Machine Mechanic;

Neither was Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson,

Nor is Prof. E. M. Crookshank, nor

Sir William J. Collins, nor Dr. Charles E. Page,

Nor Dr. Frederic Preston, nor

Dr. Walter M. James, nor the Drs. Wesselhoft.

But this would have more than filled his postal card, and then he would only have made the smallest beginning at enumerating the distinguished possessors of that order of mind that can see nothing good in disease-mongering. These are minds quite as capable as is Professor Councilman of "recognizing facts and making proper deductions"—something superior, if a coach lamp maker may be allowed to judge. Perhaps all wisdom on health matters is not the exclusive possession of those who put M. D. after their names.

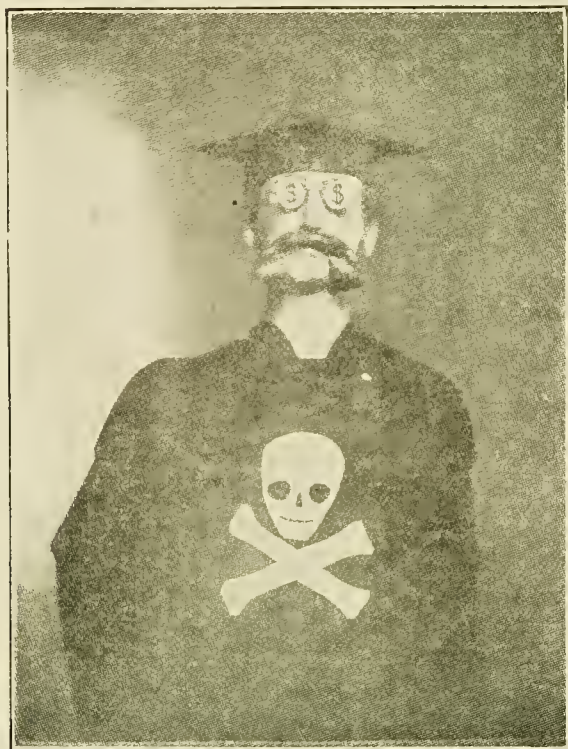

Being left in doubt as to the author I was compelled to resort to Psychological science to obtain his likeness which I here present.

INOCULATION
VACCINATION

A close examination of his features will reveal to one versed in physiognomy a person of remarkable humanitarian characteristics, one who could not under any circumstances be induced to injure his fellow men unless he was assured that it would pay him to do so.

The public welfare is his great desire and constant study,—evolving, for instance, that useful animal, the Iron-Ox, and making the care of the milk supply for infants his absorbing thought. Through his investigations we are warned of the Bugs which endanger young lives. He is ready to furnish a guarantee of safety, however, if he be allowed to squirt into the youngsters some villanous compound gathered from a sick cow or horse—providing it is promptly paid for.

Bacteriophobia is the name of one of this doctor's troubles, and it sets him bug-hunting—

Buglets to right of him.

Ravaged and plundered.

This dementia unfits its victims for all useful knowledge, and even their special knowledge stops short of one celebrated Bug—Latin name unknown to the writer, but its good old-fashioned name is HUMBUG.

This anonymous card writer might also have quoted the following, had he thought of it:

DOCTORS WITH EYES AND CONSCIENCE.

(From Hundreds of medical testimonies against vaccination.)

Dr. Alexander Wilder: Consumption follows vaccination as effect follows cause.

Dr. Dennis Turnbull: In my judgment the most frequent disposing condition for cancerous development is infused into the blood by vaccination and revaccination.

Dr. Adolf Vogt: After collecting the particulars of 400,000 cases of small-pox, I am obliged to confess my belief in vaccination is absolutely destroyed.

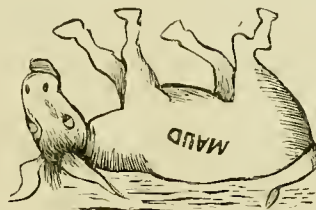

Dr. M. A. Wesner: Vaccine pus is a Poison, the purer the more certain and fatal.

Dr. W. Hitchman: I have seen hundreds of children killed by vaccination.

Dr. Zachary T. Miller: What does it profit you, if by your efforts you have gained perfect health, and your government vaccinates you, and you are rendered a cripple?

Dr. J. W. Hodge: There are probably in our own state of New York several thousand physicians who could not be coaxed or bribed to pollute the blood of a child with cowpox virus.

HOW IT WORKS ON A MULE

DOWN AND OUT—VACCINATION DID IT

The above illustration shows the effect of vaccination upon Arkansas mules. The owner of one sued the vendor of the stuff that killed 8 mules and recovered $512.50, showing that there is value to a mule that does not attach to a child.

A PRAYER

"With aching heart I come to Thee and beseech Thee to bear and grant my prayer!

"Wilt Thou not, Dear Lord, in the creation of all future generations of human beings, omit the Tonsils; the third palate, tersely named by the Medical Profession 'Adenoids' (present in every normal being), also the Vermiform Appendix and all other organs of the body which the wise surgeons of our time have discovered to be wholly superfluous and unnecessary; we beseech Thee to omit these, and thereby save the suffering, bloodshed and annoyance of having them all removed from our children at some period of their postnatal existence.

"And, Heavenly Father, I beseech Thee that our children may, in future, be born immune from all diseases of the kinds for which toxins and serums are injected in their blood--most especially, Dear Lord, small-pox, for the supposed prevention of which the ancient, useless, dangerous and filthy rite of vaccination is performed; this most earnestly I pray Thee, from the depths of my heart, that the blood of our children may no longer be poisoned, their health forever impaired and often ruined, and their lives lost. Since this superstition or vaccination delusion is hundreds of years old, Thy omnipotence alone can rid the world of its hold upon it.

"Further I beseech Thee, Dear Lord, to create millions upon millions of duplicates of all the organs possessed by sentient beings, and scatter them broadcast throughout the world; these to be absolutely without the power to feel, to be used in the experimentations of vivisectors, that vivisection of sentient creatures may no longer even be claimed to be necessary or helpful.

"Again I beseech Thee, Good Lord, to create two-thirds of all dogs, now having to submit to the surgeon's knife that their ears and tails may conform to the prevailing fashion, these I pray Thee to create with correct tails and ears, that this surgical operation may no longer be imposed upon them--one of man's truest and best friends.

"Also, Dear Lord, I beseech Thee to create two-thirds of all the horses with docked tails, and perpendicular necks, that this noble, patient, long-suffering animal may no more be subjected to the heinous outrages of docking and the cruel check. The remaining one-third of these creatures to be for those who are satisfied with Thy handiwork, as created throughout the ages.

"In the name of Love, which Thou art, Amen."
